-- The MAILING DATE of this communication appears on the cover sheet with the correspondence address --
Period for Reply

A SHORTENED STATUTORY PERIOD FOR REPLY IS SET TO EXPIRE 3 MONTH(S) OR THIRTY (30) DAYS, WHICHEVER IS LONGER, FROM THE MAILING DATE OF THIS COMMUNICATION.

- Extensions of time may be available under the provisions of 37 CFR 1.136(a). In no event, however, may a reply be timely filed after SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- If NO period for reply is specified above, the maximum statutory period will apply and will expire SIX (6) MONTHS from the mailing date of this communication.
- Failure to reply within the set or extended period for reply will, by statute, cause the application to become ABANDONED (35 U.S.C. § 133). Any reply received by the Office later than three months after the mailing date of this communication, even if timely filed, may reduce any earned patent term adjustment. See 37 CFR 1.704(b).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 33 and 40 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Takeda et al. (5,349,368) in view of Kobayakawa et al. (6,119,078).

As to claim 40, Takeda teaches a method to be performed by a computer, the method comprising the steps of:

Editing a text document that include display information; and

Where predetermined portion or the entire document is translated into to a target language document (Fig.1; Fig.7; Col.2, line 55-Col.3, line 28).

Takeda doesn't teach a client-server environment where translated or original documents are transmitted as claimed. Kobayakawa teaches a translation engine (Fig.2) for receiving and transmitting translated text information to and from a server. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to combine the two arts in order to provide the translation service to multiple users.

Claim 33 is analogous to claim 40 and is rejected for the foregoing reasons by Takeda and in view of Kobayakawa.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claim 42 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kobayakawa et al. (6,119,078).

As to claim 42, Kobayakawa teaches a method of translating text into specified language by receiving a web page, determining the language and the environment to be translated for the user inquiry and sending the document in both the translated and the original language (Col.3, lines 15-48; Fig.7).

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 9, 10 and 12 are allowed.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 33, 40 and 42 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
